WHAT WOULD HAVE HAPPENED

Those persons who are finding a great deal of fault with Representative Hawley for not insurging around in Congoess would have been pleased, no doubt, with the results -or rather want of results. What would have happened to the Ooegon City locks appropriation and the Siletz bill, for example?-Ore-

Its a rather interesting question. Were the measures referred to meritorious ones, or were M W and W E Newsom to Nelthey merely local grafts, passed as a reward for Mr. Hawley's regularity? Is it to be understood that hereafter any measure in the interest of the people will be turned down by the regulars if introduced by a representative who has the temerity to oppose any feature of an adminstration measure? If so, the growth of insurgency will be very rapid. The Congress is supposed to be the law-making body, but of late years the administration seems to have usurped this function and those who do not cheefully accept administration measures are to be branded as insurgents and their constituents are to suffer for their acts. There has FP, E, MJ and W M Ross to becu quite a lot of this kind of talk, but it does not seem to have frightened any one. As a matter of fact the advantage today in both Senate and House, is with the iudependent members and their every action has been in the interest of the people. By opposing the railroad administration bill as introduced they secured many amendments in 'the interest of shippers, so that the bill when placed upon its final J W Thurston to R L Rucker w passage received the vote of all ht seqr sec 1 6 3 the Republican senators and a E L and A I Thompson to W A number of Democrats. Such work commends itself to the voters of the Republican party and the administration will gain nothing by attempting to punish men who are doing good service for the people, nor is the Oregonian aiding the Republican party in Oregon by its new born regularity.

WHAT IS A GENTLEMAN?

This question crops up now and again in the public press and runs its course through the columns of the metropolitan dailies, even as a dose of measles. Each reader of the paper constructs an answer which will in-clude himself and thinks he has solved the problem; or else he gives vent to some high-sounding statement such as "that any man who is a virtuous man and a good citizen is a gentleman." and looks around for the applause which seldom fails this appeal to the

Yet every one knows what is the thing which is meant when it is stated that such and such a one is a gentleman. It is a saying in the South of this country that it takes three genera-tions to make a gentleman, which is to say, that the breeding of any man depends upon the education that he has received from his mother and, naturally, her breeding in a great measure depends upon that which she was Dear friend:

taught by her parents.
It is easy to be a good citizen if one lacks the temptation to be the reverse. good tea. You can get it is easy to have nice manners if one has been brought up from childhood in has been brought up from childhood in that way. It is easy to be polite to one's inferiors if the speaker is by birth sufficiently removed from them to think it unnecessary by rudeness to the blood flow faster. It show his superiority. It is easy to be makes you feel good when honorable if the society in which one was reared has fastidious feelings in you are tired-good tea. that regard. But if these advantages have not been possessed then the part of the "Broad Stone of Honor" is dif-

fault indeed, and honor is indeed due to him who shall keep the narrow way. This is to say, to be a "gentleman" means birth, breeding and education, a knowledge of the minutiae of society, an outwardly chivalrous attitude to women and an outwardly unselfish at-titude toward one's neighbor. Any man possessing these qualifications has the "open sesame" to the magic coves of society. If he has them not he hath not the "wedding garment."

of a manhood he may find at some su-preme moment that after all he has erything.
